Newton, July 9, 1767.

From a late London Paper.

To the Printer of The S. J. CHRONICLE.

SIR,

I Have been more concerned than surprised in perusing the Sermon lately preached before the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in foreign Parts. The Preacher,* in his usual Way, harangues much against that most abominable of all Errors, Persecution for Opinions; and with his usual Consistency, all through his Discourse, treats the whole Body of Dissenters in England and America, with the decent Names of Fanatics; the Presbyterian Faction; certain of the Colonies, where the established Church is Presbyterian, and still in its ancient Spirit of Purity, the Word Purity printed in Capitals, lest the Preacher's Wit should pass unnoticed.

Those last factious People, or philosophic Colonists, as his Lordship politely stiles them, are charged with a blasphemous Contempt of God's holy Dispensations, meerly for their Unwillingness to admit the Hierarchy of a certain Church amongst them, and its pretended Gospel-Sovereignty over all others. They are further complimented with being Freethinkers, a mighty Accusation undoubtedly, because they are resolved to think for themselves, though it be somewhat differently from his Lordship; and as Men that are ready to laugh at their Bible, because they do not like to have it crammed down their Throats with his Lordship's and Brethren's Notes, and Commentaries and Interpretations.

A little more civil Treatment might have been expected from one of his Lordship's Order, were it only for this Respect, that the Presbyterians have lately furnished the Church of England with some of the most eminent Ornaments of its Purple; who, it is presumed, had not, nor have any Thing to accuse their Brethren whom they have forsaken of, that is of odious, seditious, or antiscriptural Tendency.

By way of Postscript to his Sermon, his Lordship annexes a Letter to the Society, taken out of a Pamphlet, entitled, A Brief Narrative of the Indian Charity-School in Connecticut, New-England. But why was the remaining Part of the Title of the Pamphlet suppressed? Founded and carried on by that faithful Servant of God, the Rev. Mr. Eleazer Wheelock. Was it because Mr. Wheelock is a Fanatic, a Presbyterian, that his Name was to be kept out of the Sight of the Members of the Society, lest they should be offended at having any thing to do with Sectaries, or lest it should appear or be owned that the Gospel could be propagated by such Hands?

Away with such mean Sectarian Views! The pure and peaceable Religion of Jesus, can never rise or flourish on so narrow a Foundation.

The Public has for some Time had its Suspicions that the principal Views of the Leaders of the Society have been to episcopize the American Continent. Such Discourses as these are not likely to clear them; much less the Perusal of the Proceedings of the Society, always subjoined to the Discourse.

One of their Correspondents writes thus, July 31, 1765, from North-Carolina; "where, says he, every Sect abounds, except the Roman Catholicks; but reckons the Church of England to have the Majority, and doubts not but the greatest Part of every Sect would come over to the established Religion, could a sufficient Number of exemplary and orthodox Clergy persuade themselves to settle in this Country".

So then, the Matter is out! and the great Business of the Mission is confessed to be, the bringing all other Sects, as they are called, to the established Religion, as it is called. I am, Sir, your's, &c.

A concerned Looker on.

* Bp. Warburton.

CHARLESTOWN, (South-Carolina,) June 22.

"On Tuesday the 16th Inst. came on before the hon. Egerton Leigh, Esq; sole judge of the Court of Vice-Admiralty of this province: a cause of great weight and expectation, wherein James Hawker, Esq; commander of his Majesty's ship Sardoine, was prosecutor qui tam, &c. against the schooner Active, and her cargo, whereof James Gordon, of Winyaw, merchant, was the claimant. The seizure of this coasting schooner was made on pretence that she had no register, and bond not having been given, nor cockets and sufferances taken out from the custom-house, agreeable to the directions of the act of 7th and 8th Will. III. and of the acts of the 3d and 4th and 5th and 6th of his present Majesty's reign, when the judge after hearing many learned arguments from the proctors and advocates on both sides, and taking due Deliberation thereon, was pleased to deliver his opinion, "That nothing in the several acts above "mentioned, can be construed to lay any unnecessary restraints, upon the trade and correspondence of his Majesty's American subjects, when "any goods or commodities are carried merely "for the use and sustenance of the said colonies, "or, in other words, when such goods are carried "only from one port, or place in the same colony." And, for as much as it did appear that the vessel in question had been constantly employed in this province, without putting out to sea, further than her Burthen, or the coast made necessary, for the safety of her navigation to and from this port, and there was not the least shadow of pretence that the said vessel had been at any time employed in an illicit trade, or that any fraud had been committed or intended, whereby his Majesty's revenue could be diminished or effected, or the fair trader undermined or prejudiced, contrary to any of the wise provisions of any revenue laws, or the laws of the customs: His Honour was pleased therefore to dismiss the information, and to order restitution of the vessel and cargo to the claimant, and decreed the claimant to pay all costs, except such as accrued to the prosecutor on his part of the proceedings, the judge being of opinion, that, all circumstances considered, there was a probable cause of seizure, and the most material part of the expence attending the prosecution was occasioned by the claimant himself.

At every sitting of the court during the continuance of this cause, which was long and highly contested, the court-house was constantly crowded; the judge's final sentence and decree was received with uncommon and general satisfaction; it being from thence apparent that no vessels whatever, when employed in carrying goods from one part of the province to another, are obliged to take out sufferances, cockets, or clearances at the custom-house, nor have vessels employed solely in that trade, or that never go to another colony, any occasion for a register, they being particularly excepted in the 7th and 8th of Will. III.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.

By a Gentleman from Trenton, we have the following Account of a most remarkable Increase in a Gentleman's Garden there, viz. A single Grain of RYE produced 169 Ears, which contained upwards of 4800 Grains.

Extract of a Letter from Demarara, May 18, 1767.

"The 24th of April, at 5 in the Morning, we were alarmed with another very dreadful EARTHQUAKE, which continued full 10 Minutes; the Motion seemed to be from East to West, very quick and vibrating, the Weather very heavy Rain, and calm; my Family and I on the Shock, ran from our Beds to the Fields, where we remained some Time, awfully frightened, and very wet. This is a most terrible Country; we have had, more or less, Earthquakes every Week since the 18th of October last."

Capt. Byrne, from Waterford, on the 3d ult. about 15 Leagues to the Eastward of the Banks of Newfoundland, spoke a Sloop from Boston, and another from Rhode-Island, bound to the Western Islands.

NEW-YORK, July 9.

On Monday last arrived, the Amity's Production, Capt. Thomas Noble, with 99 Soldiers on board, under the Command of Capt. Marsden. They left the Cove of Cork the 20th of May, in company with 5 other Transport Ships for this Place, and 3 for Philadelphia, under the Command of Agent Henry Francis Evans, which Capt. Noble parted from in the Night, Lat. 37. 27. Long. 68. 12. but the next Day all the other 5 that were bound here arrived, viz. the Hunter, Capt. Hunter, Scarboro' Capt. Tate; the Amity's Production, Capt. Noble, having on board the 16th Regiment, under the command of Col. Gabbit.—The Amity's Assistance Capt. Knowles; the Lyde, Capt. Slightholm, having the 26th Regiment, under the command of Major Templar.

The 26th Regiment we hear, is stationed at Perth-Amboy, and other Towns in New-Jersey, for which Place the 3 Ships were to sail again Yesterday.

The Ships for Philadelphia are the Amity's Benediction, Capt. —— ; the Liberty, Capt. Cornforth; the Amity Admonition, Capt. —— ; having on board the 18th, or Irish Royal Regiment, under the command of ——.

We hear the 28th and some other Regiments, are immediately going home.

We cannot find that any later Papers came by these Ships, than those we had from Bristol, nor any remarkable News.—Lord Chatham had greatly recover'd his Health—there was no likelihood of his resigning his Office, or of the Grenvillian Party coming into the Ministry.—Great Commotions about the Affairs of the East-India Company—Captain M'Bride, in the Jason, was arrived from the Coast of Patagonia in the South-Seas,—confirms the Account given by Commodre Byron with Regard to the Place, and Size of the Inhabitants—— stayed on Falconers-Island 12 Months, to try the Soil and Climate, which he found to be very good, Fertile, Healthy and Temperate.

July 13. Saturday last his Majesty's armed Scooners, the Earl of Chatham, and Hawke, commanded by Mr. George Stoney, and Mr. Matthew Connely, sailed from hence for Jamaica: They mount 6 Guns each, were built here together by Messrs. Totten and Crossfield, launched together in one Day, off one Set of Ways, now sail together, and belong to one Owner; and are so much alike as hardly to be known apart, and are by good Judges esteemed compleat Vessels.

A Man of the Name of Campbell, was committed to our Goal, since our last, for robbing a Sloop that lay in Philadelphia Harbour, as mentioned in our last, of Cash to the Amount of £.300. He has confessed the Fact, and we make no doubt his Ingenuity will be amply rewarded.

NEWPORT, July 13.

We hear from Warwick, that on the 4th Inst. the Dwelling-House of Mr. Thomas Stafford, in that Town, was entirely consumed by Fire, with almost every Thing in it. It was a very good House, and the Furniture valuable. This Accident happened, as we are told, when Mr. Stafford and the Men of the House were abroad, and only some Women and Children were at Home; and was occasioned by a large Fire made for trying out some Tallow or Fat, which catched in the Chimney, and from thence communicated to the House.

BOSTON, July 20.

Messieurs EDES & GILL,

Whether the following Extract from the Character of Uranius, which I have transcribed from Dr. Friend's History of Physick, has any Agreement with a certain celebrated Exotic's, I am not at all concerned: I only aim at the Diversion of your Readers, and beg you to insert it as Part of their next Monday's Amusement. Your's, W.

"URANIUS—was by birth a Syrian, by profession a physician, who having not the least knowledge of Aristotle, or the ancient philosophy, had nevertheless an high conceit of his own learning, which only consisted in a fluency of expression, and a peremptoriness in maintaining whatever paradox he advanced. He was generally found either at the booksellers shops, on the public piazza's adjoining to the court: and there disputed with several persons who had as little tincture of learning as morality; and that about questions of a high nature, which he argued upon with great rashness and presumption; such as the attributes and essence of God: speculations very much above our low comprehensions. Yet this gave these disputants no concern. The Club generally met after the debauch of the day, and in a libertine manner, discoursed of the most sublime and most difficult questions, without either convincing others or being convinced themselves; so that they parted in the opinion which they severally were prepossessed with, and usually ended their quarrels like gamesters with bitter reproaches and hot words. See here the result of their disputes which most commonly concluded in a mutual aversion to each other. Amongst these Uranius was one of the first rank, and made as great a bustle as Thersites does in Homer. But he had no abilities for want of solid learning, to law down any of his arguments in due form; which made him sometimes eager to answer doubts before they were raised, and sometimes, instead of answering objections, to ask the reason of their being raised. In short he constantly inverted the rules, which are ordinarily observed in regular conferences, which must always hinder the discovery of truth. He affected Scepticism in every thing, and formed his answers upon the model of Pyrro and Sextus Empiricus. He imagined, that the opinion he was of, that there could be no certain knowledge of any thing, would make him perfectly easy, and free him entirely from any remorse or trouble of mind. His capacity being thus very mean, he could only impose upon the simple and credulous; and if he was at a loss in any science, he was much more so in the knowledge of the world, and the conversation of the more polite part of it. He frequented the houses of great persons, where having eat and drank to excess, he became the ridicule of the company; and abandoning himself to all liberties of speech, as he was often laughed at, so he was sometimes affronted and even beaten; so that he was as necessary at entertainment, as a fool, or a buffoon."
